

Birth Announcement!

Last Saturday, October 20, 2007, a brand new life was added to Cutcomb Lake Rural School. A chrysalis that had been developing for two weeks finally hatched! The Monarch butterfly that eclosed, or emerged from the chrysalis, was a male with a wingspread of 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches. He has been named Rusty, and he will be sharing a cage in the upper grades classroom with another male Monarch named Tiger. Please scroll down to see pictures of his amazing development.
